

As stated in Article V, Section II, Part (c) of the Election Regulations:

“Any candidate or member of the candidate's staff who violates departmental or university regulations, or Texas A&M University Student Rules, in an action related to campaigning shall be subject to disciplinary action by the Election Commission.”

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the following additions to the published Election Regulations will be made due to recent university regulations:

Social distancing is strongly encouraged in all contexts of campaign activity.

Failure abide by Texas A&M University’s posted Face Covering Guidance during any campaign activity will result in a minor violation. Please visit this link to review this guidance prior to participating in any campaign activity.

All indoor campaign activity must abide by posted modified occupancy rules as set by the University Center & Special Events. Failure to comply will result in a minor violation.

All outdoor campaign activity with attendance of 10 or more persons may take place only upon receiving approval from University Center and Special Events or the appropriate reserving authority. Hosting an outdoor event without receiving the proper approval will result in a minor violation.

Candidates are not to distribute any physical campaign material amongst other persons in areas other than outside the Commons Dining Hall or the Wehner building. Examples of campaign material include, but are not limited to, flyers, pamphlets, t-shirts, and buttons. Candidates found distributing physical campaign materials amongst other people in an unauthorized area will be assessed a minor violation.
